

Have you ever tried lying down on the ground outside and looking up at the sky? Can you spot the shapes of things like animals in the clouds? Sometimes they look big and fluffy and sometimes they are stretched like a giant paint brush has swept across the sky!

Why not cut out our Sky Scanner and see what you can spot with your family? Or you can make your own using any paper or card you have handy, just cut a hole in the middle to look through.

Lie down if you can, get comfy and hold the scanner up to the sky. Make sure you protect your eyes and don't look directly at the sun and enjoy watching the changing sky above you!

My Super Sky Scanner!

I wonder what cloud shapes we can see?

Look up! What can you see?

Is the sky moving?

Extra Activity: Once you've spent some time looking up at the sky, you could recreate the clouds you've seen using paints, cotton wool, scrunched up paper – anything you like! We'd love to see your pictures on our social media pages!
